

MELL GORE GRANTED RESPITE OF 60 DAYS IN CHEEK MURDER CASE

GOVERNOR ORDERS EXECUTION PLANS HELD IN ABEYANCE

Action Follows Conference With Attorney Reuben Garland and Delegation From Villa Rica.

LOW MENTALITY WILL BE CLAIMED

Doomed Barber in Peachtree Road Hold-Up Tragedy Asks Time To Prepare Plea.

Governor Clifford Walker late Friday granted a 60-day respite to Mel M. Gore, Buckhead barber, who was sentenced to electrocution on July 16 as an accessory to the murder of W. H. Cheek, Peachtree road grocer.

This announcement was made following a lengthy conference between the governor, Reuben Garland, attorney for Gore, and former neighbors of the Gore family from Villa Rica.

Governor Walker stated Friday night in granting the 60-day respite that he had requested attorneys for Gore to complete their case and arrange for hearings before the prison commission and himself within the next 30 days, so that in event clemency is refused the condemned man will have at least 30 days in which to make his peace with God and prepare himself for death at the end of the 60-day period.

Attorneys for the condemned man stated that they would not have time before the date set for execution by the court to properly prepare a plea for clemency they wish to present to the state prison commission.

Mr. Garland accompanied the Villa Rica delegation before the governor and stated that the defense expected to prove before the prison commission that Gore is not of sufficient mentality to recognize right from wrong. They will also argue that Gore was merely an accessory to the murder of W. H. Cheek, Peachtree road grocer, and that while Jack Wilson, who is alleged to have fired the shot which killed Cheek, has not been apprehended, the accessories have been given lighter sentences.

Included in the Villa Rica delegation were J. T. Nixon, prominent Carroll county citizen and father of H. A. Nixon, cashier in the state treasurer's office; T. W. Tolbert, Villa Wilson and Frank Daniel. They informed the governor that Gore's father is paralyzed, his mother is very old and that he has a wife and child dependent upon him.

Lloyd George Asks Justice For Miners

Fieri Welshman Announces He Is Getting "Fed Up With Lectures."

Rhyl, Wales, July 9.—(AP)—David Lloyd George, speaking today before the Welsh National Liberal federation, of which he was elected president for the 28th time, condemned the government for its handling of the coal situation, and declared it was his duty to demand that the government should do something to help the miners.

At another point he said: "You may starve and beat the miners, but that won't bring a solution. The only safety of the community is that impartial, stern justice is meted out to all classes alike in this land."

Discussing the political position of the liberals in north Wales, the former premier remarked that he was "getting a little fed up with lectures from on high." His audience interpreted this as referring to his troubles with Lord Oxford and Asquith, the liberal chief, and his followers.

Marriage Bet by Husband PORTIA BREAKS DOWN ON WITNESS STAND Charged by Mrs. Budlong

MRS. JESSIE MARGARET BUDLONG.

Newport, R. I., July 9.—A $50 bet may be the basic cause of the many marital troubles of Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong.

This was revealed when Mrs. Budlong, in a final effort to show the humiliations she had suffered from her husband, Milton J. Budlong, placed herself on the witness stand today and told of the 28 years of her married life.

Shortly before her wedding, she said, Budlong made a bet of $50 with a friend, a Mr. Stearns, that he would get married. At the wedding Stearns served as best man and presented the groom with $50.

Mrs. Budlong said that she was told at the time that the money was a wedding present and did not learn until later of the bet.

The slim little woman, who has surprised the exclusive summer colony with the fight she has made, acting as her own attorney, to prevent her husband from obtaining a divorce, broke down several times as she told her story and at several intervals cried aloud.

Mrs. Budlong's decision to put herself on the stand came after her motion to have the case dismissed on the ground that there had not been sufficient cruelty proven had been denied by the judge.

The plaintiff's counsel had rested at the opening of the session following this afternoon's recess.

"Despite humiliations I have suffered, I have never refused to live with Mr. Budlong," the respondent said. "I don't object to now and never will."

When queried by Judge Blodgett as to how much more time she wanted to plead her case, Mrs. Budlong said that her husband had been three days on the witness stand and she was entitled to the same.

"I am working for my very life," she said, "and working hard. If I lose, the case will go to the supreme court."

The case will be continued at a special hearing tomorrow afternoon despite the efforts of Mrs. Budlong to have it postponed until Monday.

MARTIN DURKIN, CHICAGO SLAYER, IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Has Not Yet Reached Decision on Penalty To Be Given Shanahan's Slayer.

Chicago, July 10.—(AP)—Martin J. Durkin, young Chicago gunman, early today was convicted of the murder of Edwin Shanahan, a federal agent.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty after a four hours' deliberation and then retired to vote on the penalty.

Chicago, July 9.—(AP)—The jury which will decide the fate of Martin J. Durkin, sheik gunman, accused of slaying Edwin Shanahan, federal agent, received the case tonight at 11 o'clock.

After electing the foreman the jury took one ballot on Durkin's fate, and it was reported that it stood 8 to 4 for conviction.

Judge Harry Miller, in instructing the jury, gave them four verdicts they might return—guilty of murder, with a sentence of death; guilty with a sentence of life imprisonment; guilty with a sentence of a number of years in prison, and not guilty.

The jury retired after having heard Louis Blumenthal, assistant state attorney, make a plea for a "punishment that will fit the crime which was murder in cold blood."

Earlier in the arguments, defense lawyers had contended that Durkin was justified in shooting Shanahan, who went to a southside garage to arrest the Chicago gunman for transporting a stolen automobile. The defense maintained that Durkin did not know Shanahan was an officer and that, even if he did, Shanahan was not empowered to arrest him.

During the course of today's argument Blumenthal insisted one of the defense attorneys by denning Shanahan's coat, vest and topcoat in an effort to prove that Shanahan displayed his badge when he tried to arrest Durkin. The defense attorney wore the slain man's clothes to try to prove the opposite.

Hawthorne's Daughter Dies AFTER LIFE DEVOTED TO POOR

New York, July 9.—(AP)—Nathaniel Hawthorne's youngest child, Rose, known as Mother Alphonsa Lathrop, Order of St. Dominic, who had devoted the last 25 years to the relief of the cancerous poor, died today at Rosary Hill home, Hawthorne, N. Y. She was 75 years old. She was born in Lenox, Mass.

In 1871, she married George Parsons Lathrop, author. They became Catholics and the wife's work for the poor culminated in the establishment of two Catholic institutions for cancerous sufferers.

After her husband's death in 1898, Mrs. Lathrop decided to found a women's order called "Servants of Relief." The following year, she and Mary Rose Huber, an art student, were admitted to the Third Order of St. Dominic. They worked without the habit, carrying food and cheer to the poor, but in 1899 deciding they would work better with the habit, they appealed to Archbishop Corrigan to found a congregation.

BRIAND MINISTRY SCORES VICTORIES ON FINANCE POLICY

Two Votes of Confidence Given by House of Deputies to Briand and Cailiaux at Night Session.

Paris, July 10.—(Saturday).—The Briand government and the financial policy of Minister of Finance Joseph Cailiaux, in which he demands extraordinary powers, have achieved complete victory in the chamber of deputies.

Two votes of confidence, passed just before 4 o'clock this morning, first approved the government by 324 to 203 and then expressed approval of the financial policy by 289 to 237. Success for Briand and Cailiaux came after the premier had virtually forced the chamber into an all-night session and then had threatened them with another government collapse unless favorable action was forthcoming by morning.

Briand's Demand.

"I demand that this session continue," he declared. "We have talked enough. France and the world must know whether or not the chamber has confidence in us, as otherwise a new government must be found quickly."

All day the government held the strength it had gained Thursday, bringing the franc up to 38.15 for the dollar as against 39.80 Thursday, but a new attack launched by Maurice Bokanowski, who was asked to join the Briand cabinet and refused, weakened the position of Briand and his colleagues as the night progressed.

Bokanowski said the government was not adopting the plan of financial experts for rehabilitation of French finances, but was instead asking a vote of confidence without explaining its financial projects to the chamber.

Tardieu made his long heralded attack on the government but it was disappointing to the anti-government forces and was said to have increased the chances of a favorable vote for the cabinet.

Tardieu declared that for 17 days the government had offered the chamber nothing but a ministerial declaration and speeches.

Legislation by Decree.

It is understood that the government will immediately press on the chamber a measure which will grant the cabinet permission to enact necessary financial legislation by decree.

A mother pleaded with the governor's wife, woman to woman. The governor's wife pleaded with the chief executive and the life of a 20-year-old convicted murderer was spared temporarily, at least.

This is the real story of the reprieve of Donald Ringer four hours before he was to go to the electric chair for the killing of Carl Moore, a Nebraska automobile salesman.

Governor Adam McMillen, despite his firm convictions against capital punishment, had steeled himself against showing any leniency.

The governor had told Ringer's attorneys at 9:30 p. m. that the statement of Dr. J. J. Cameron, of Kearney, identifying a photograph of a man he had treated three days after the murder as Carl Moore, had no bearing on the case.

"Have you asked Mrs. McMillen's aid?" a reporter asked.

ATLANTA GOLFER HAS POOR ROUND FOR 149 TOTAL

Watts Gunn and Howard Beckett, Other Atlanta Stars, Withdraw From National Open.

TURNESA, NEW YORK IS PRESSING LEADER

Final 36 Holes To Be Played Today; High Scores Feature Second Day.

Columbus, Ohio, July 9.—(AP)—Bill Mehlhorn, of Chicago, had no trouble in maintaining his lead in the national open golf championship at Scioto club today despite a falling off of seven strokes from his record round of 88 yesterday.

His 148 for 36 holes still left him two strokes in the van, and Bobby Jones, who trailed him by that margin in the first round, dropped back several places by virtue of the worst round he had ever played in the eight open championships he has contested. He scored 30-40-70.

Jones' spill from an excellent 70 to a poor 70 was the most startling event of the second round and furnished a great display of errors to the large gallery that followed him through his tribulations. The best score of the day was a 73 by Jack Forrester, of New York, who thereby gained a tie with Jones at 140.

Much as Jones slumped, he still topped such stars as Walter Hagen and Chick Evans by a stroke, as Hagen was almost as inexact as Jones, while Evans again failed to solve the second nine after playing the first well. John Junor, Portland, Oregon, fell off from 70 to 80 to 150. The defending champion, Willie MacFarlane, was one stroke back with 151, having taken a 70 today with Jones.

Wind Swept Links.

There was some excuse for these delinquencies, for a hot wind swept the links, rising as the day wore on. The greens were very fast and any ball that sifted sideways in the breeze was tumbled by the sloping fairways into terrific rough.

The man who supplanted Jones in shadowing Mehlhorn was Joe Turnesa, of New York, who got a good 74 for his total of 145. Just one stroke behind him was another Latin golfer, Dan Williams, also of New York, who added 74 to his par 72. Five strokes behind the leader were Leo Diegel and George Sargent, of New York, while tied with Hagen and Evans at 150 were Al Espinosa, of Chicago, and Willie Klein, of New York.

Just what caused Jones to slip, even he could not say except that he was surprised with competitive golf after his good round yesterday.

The Scioto links will not tolerate slowness and is an inhospitable place.

Life of Doomed Youth GOVERNOR'S WIFE GETS REPRIEVE Spared on Mother's Plea

Lincoln, Neb., July 9.—For the cologne lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin.

A mother pleaded with the governor's wife, woman to woman. The governor's wife pleaded with the chief executive and the life of a 20-year-old convicted murderer was spared temporarily, at least.

This is the real story of the reprieve of Donald Ringer four hours before he was to go to the electric chair for the killing of Carl Moore, a Nebraska automobile salesman.

Governor Adam McMillen, despite his firm convictions against capital punishment, had steeled himself against showing any leniency.

The governor had told Ringer's attorneys at 9:30 p. m. that the statement of Dr. J. J. Cameron, of Kearney, identifying a photograph of a man he had treated three days after the murder as Carl Moore, had no bearing on the case.

"Have you asked Mrs. McMillen's aid?" a reporter asked.

Mrs. Brechner hastened to a telephone, calls to the executive mansion were not getting through because of the many demands that the governor spare Ringer's life. But luck was with her.

"Mrs. McMillen, this is Donald Ringer's mother speaking. I want to know if there isn't something you can do to influence the governor to spare my boy's life," Mrs. Brechner said.

"Haven't you a boy? Can't you imagine how it would be if you had a boy?"

"Donald is only a boy, I know he couldn't do it. He was so kind-hearted. The police just beat him into signing that confession; he never did what it said."

"I know you're not the kind of a woman who would let a poor innocent boy go to his death if you could help it."

Mrs. McMillen promised to help.

At 10:30 p. m. Governor McMillen announced that a week's reprieve had been granted.

Andrews-Mashburn-Miller Case Verdict Slated Today

Testimony of a dozen or more witnesses in the recorder's court trial Friday of charges of disorderly conduct against Mrs. J. E. Andrews, president of the Woman's Civic council; Mrs. C. E. Mashburn, of East Fair street, and C. D. Miller, of Hill street, to the effect that Mrs. Andrews is a meddler and a person of unpeaceful disposition, were followed by an attack from the reform leader on a number of witnesses.

Witnesses for Mrs. Mashburn and Miller told the court that Mrs. Andrews was a constant source of dissonance; that she was a nuisance in that she tried to interfere with the private affairs of others without authority, and that "it was impossible to get along with her."

Mrs. Andrews in turn charged that a number of witnesses were dealers and promoters of whisky and vice; that she knew they were responsible for death, divorces and ruin, and she even laid supplies of liquor to them at their doors. These witnesses, she called by name in open court and declared that police records would substantiate her assertions.

Mrs. Miller, wife of one of the defendants in the affair growing out of a visit by Miller and his sister, Mrs. Mashburn, to the Andrews' home, and their alleged threat of violence against Mrs. Andrews, took the stand. It was Mrs. Miller whom Mrs. Andrews claims she offered aid against alleged mistreatment at the hands of her husband and his sister.

Mrs. Miller testified that her husband was suing her for divorce and custody of the children, that she mistreated her and that Mrs. Mashburn sympathized with her brother in the differences between them. She expressed sorrow at having been the cause of implicating Mrs. Andrews in the affair.

The case was called at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning and lasted until Noon. It was continued until 10 o'clock this morning, and a decision by Recorder A. W. Callaway is expected today in view of the fact that the great bulk of the testimony has been submitted.

During the trial Mrs. Andrews had been accused of impersonating a police officer, of threatening violence to a witness and of making the assertion prior to development of the case that she would "blow up a city block with dynamite." Mrs. Andrews denied that she had ever made such a statement, adding that it was dynamited in view of the fact that it would be only "with righteous indignation."

Much of the testimony Friday of witnesses for Mrs. Andrews, who included women well-known in church circles, hinged upon cross-examination by opposing attorneys on the question of Mrs. Andrews' alleged meddlesome and belligerent disposition. "Do you consider a person peaceable who would threaten to blow up a city block?" attorneys for Miller and Mrs. Mashburn asked Mrs. Andrews.

"I do not," Mrs. Andrews replied. "If Mrs. Andrews said she would dynamite a block with righteous indignation, she spoke figuratively, as did Jesus when He said, in speaking of His return: 'Think not that I will send peace, but a sword.'"

LIVELY RACE SEEN FOR COMMISSIONER IN DEKALB COUNTY

Decatur, Ga., July 9.—(Special.) Politics in DeKalb county took a lively turn today when two candidates entered the race for commissioner of roads and revenues and the incumbent, L. T. Y. Nash, who is serving his second term and who announced the first of this week for re-election. The two new candidates are Dr. P. T. Hopkins, a well-known dentist with offices in the Hurt building in Atlanta, and J. J. Lettich, a farmer living in the southeastern section of the county.

At the opening of the present week it looked as if the race for county commissioner, formerly a storm center in county politics, might be very uneventful this year. No one had announced for the office and the indications were that Mr. Nash would be re-elected without opposition.

The announcement of Dr. Hopkins and Mr. Lettich, however, has developed and the indications are that a heated campaign may be looked for from now until September 8.

Interest also centers in the race for the legislature, there being four candidates to announce so far for the three places to be filled. The incumbents, John W. Weeks, J. C. Davis and Paul Lindsey are seeking reelection, and Carl T. Hudgins, a local lawyer, has also announced as a candidate.

There will be only two local contests in DeKalb, that of commissioner and legislature, with much interest being taken in the race for congress from the fifth district, at Decatur, where L. J. Stacks is a candidate along with Mayor Walter Sims, of Atlanta and the incumbent, W. D. Upshaw.

Entries for candidates for commissioner and the general assembly close Saturday at noon.

NAPIER'S LAWYERS ASK FOR HEARING OF CLEMENCY PLEA

In a last attempt to save the life of Bunce Napier, convicted in Crisp county on a charge of criminal assault upon a 12-year-old girl, and sentenced to be electrocuted July 23, attorneys for the condemned man notified Governor Clifford Walker Friday that they would ask a hearing on a plea for executive clemency in the case.

This action followed refusal Friday of the prison commission to recommend clemency in the case. The attorneys are E. B. Dykes, of Dooly county, and Judge O. T. Gowan, of Cordele. The hearing before the governor could not be held Friday because the prosecution was not represented in Atlanta, it was stated.

Brown Intimates He Will Decline Debate Challenge

J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, who is seeking reelection at the forthcoming democratic primaries, returned to his office Friday after several days spent in a speaking tour of the state concerning cotton, the cotton hopper and in the interest of his candidacy.

Mr. Brown said Friday afternoon that he would reply today to a challenge for joint debate issued to him by Charles E. Stewart, of Appling county, one of his opponents in the primary campaign. While Mr. Brown made no definite statement, he intimated that he would refuse the challenge.

Mr. Brown stated that he had spoken in Appling county during his tour of the state and that an "Appling County Brown club" formed after his speech now included more than 1,000 of the 2,100 registered voters in the county and declared that before the election day it would total 2,000.

ENTRY DATE IS SET IN CHATTOOGA COUNTY

Summersville, Ga., July 9.—(Special.)—July 24 has been set as the closing date in Chattooga county for the entrance of candidates for representative and state senator, and it will be necessary for all candidates to have these offices to qualify by 12 o'clock noon, on that date.

The democratic executive committee assessed the following entrance fees against the candidates for the various offices: Congressman $35, judge of superior court $50, state senator $15, representative $15 and county commissioner $5.

B. H. Edmondson, prominent local business man, has announced his candidacy as representative in the state legislature to succeed Representative Thomas J. Anderson, who has entered the race for state senator from the 42d district.

Mr. Edmondson, who represented this county in the legislature several years ago, is the second candidate to announce. O. T. House, of Holland, having entered the race two weeks ago.

C. S. Fowler, chairman of the Chattooga county board of roads and revenues, has announced as a candidate for reelection.

Continued Showers And Cloudy Weather Seen for Atlanta

Atlanta's weather for the next few days is not likely to be changed from partly cloudy with local thunder showers, according to A. H. Scott, assistant meteorologist for the Atlanta branch of the United States weather bureau. The prediction of partly cloudy with thunder showers which has held good for two or three days, will stand for today, he said. Temperatures will be about the same today as Friday. The highest mercury reading Friday was 88 degrees and the lowest was 72 degrees. The thermometer will not go above 90 degrees today, Mr. Scott said.

AMERICAN SCHOOL CLOSED BY TURKS MAY BE REOPENED

Athens, Greece, July 9.—The Turkish government has summarily closed the American school at Caesarea, Anatolia, which was reopened about a year ago with funds given by Badrag Gulbenkian, a wealthy New York banker of Armenian birth. The official closing of the school cited the Lausanne treaty as forbidding special schools for Armenians.

The school provided for about 350 children, of whom 300 were dependent orphans. Disposal of these children is now a subject of negotiation. Permission is being sought to remove them from Turkey, if the Near East relief fund can find funds for their care in Syria or Palestine.

Only one school for Armenians now remains open in Asiatic Turkey, according to the Greek newspapers.

PARDON IS ASKED FOR LIFE TERMER AFTER 22 YEARS

Governor Clifford Walker has under consideration an application for pardon or parole of J. T. Bones, now serving a life sentence on the Clarke county chain gang, following a petition presented Friday by Attorney James J. Davis and Tom Dickens, of Atlanta.

Bones has served 22 years and has a good record, attorneys said. He was convicted of the killing of Jack Hill, in Floyd county. Among signers of the petition presented the governor was the son of the man Bones killed, it was stated.

AVONDALE BAPTISTS PLAN FOR REVIVAL

The Avondale Baptist church in Avondale is planning a series of outdoor evangelistic services beginning next Sunday and continuing two weeks.

Rev. Adiel Moncrief, pastor of the church, will preach at 7 o'clock following a song service led by an evangelistic singer and a large chorus choir. Messages will be "The Whole Gospel of Christ For the Whole World," Rev. Moncrief said. He will preach every evening during the revival with the exception of certain services in which special speakers will be heard.

Services will be held in the open air on the lot next to the church building on Stone Mountain road. A choir gallery and platform and seats for over 3,000 people will be erected before Sunday.

Services will be held at 3:30 every afternoon for personal workers, prayer groups and Bible studies. These services will be led by different speakers including preachers and lay leaders.

ACTOR'S POLL TAX JUMPS RAPIDLY

Woburn, Mass., July 9.—(AP)—Arthur W. Finnegan, an actor, returned home from New York city to find a poll tax of $3 with accrued charges of 24 cents. When he took it to City Collector McColgan he was told the total had jumped to $4.03. He said he demanded and was refused an itemized account, whereupon a special constable was ordered to detain him. Finnegan walked 25 feet across a yard to the police station and was released after a brief conference with the collector. He then returned to his home and an assistant arrested him.

They went back to the city hall and McColgan announced the score was $11.12. According to Finnegan, this was how it stood: City's charges, $3.61; constable, $4.33 for assistant; $1 for constable; 20 cents for "transmission" across the yard and 16 cents for "padding."

Finnegan has paid and appealed. He claims he was not a resident of the city in 1925, the year covered by the bill.

High Grade Men Asked To Serve As Prohi Agents

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, July 9.—Simultaneous announcements that immediate steps are being taken to increase the border patrol force to 450 men, prohibition authorities let it be known today that a campaign now is being waged to force disreputable and low grade dry agents off the federal payroll.

"Every effort is being made," Acting Federal Dry Chief Frank Dow said, "to build up the morale and character of the prohibition unit. Unfit agents are being discharged constantly and more will be eliminated in the future. General Andrews, federal dry chief, wants to win popular support for this law and he believes elevating the standard of the force will bring this about."

Bare leaving for London, General Andrews made a plea for clean-cut, decent, efficient, courteous conduct on the part of dry officers. He pointed out that college graduates in many cases were earning less than the prohibition department could pay good well trained men.

The increase of the border patrol is being done under authority of the second dry act, which authorized more than $2,600,000 to dry law enforcement. Only a few members of the new force have been selected now but a total of 425 will be enrolled, probably within six weeks.

Of this number, 30 will be assigned to Detroit to aid the regular mounted border patrol. The others have been assigned along the Canadian and Mexican borders and the Atlantic coast.

MANY NEW AGENTS ADDED TO FORCE

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—Strengthening of the border patrol was begun today by prohibition officials with the enlistment of 235 additional men authorized by congress for this work.

The bulk of the new force will go along the Florida coast where 25 men will be added and along the Canadian boundary near Detroit and in the far northwest where squads of 27 and 30 men, respectively, will be placed.

The addition of these forces, coupled with the recent order of the Canadian government placing mounted police along the line, is expected by prohibition authorities to plug effectively the leak of liquor smuggling from Canada.

The border patrol force of customs and prohibition agents will be augmented to a total strength of 540 men, most of whom will be equipped with automobiles.

The allotment of the additional men as announced today by Frank Dow, acting chief of prohibition and customs, includes:

Twelve to New Orleans and two to Savannah.

Most of this additional staff will be placed under the direction of the collector of customs in their districts in accordance with an arrangement worked out by Assistant Secretary Andrews.

GERMAN-AUSTRIAN UNION DISCUSSED AT WOMEN'S MEET

Dublin, July 9.—(AP)—International problems, including a possible union between Germany and Austria, were among the subjects discussed at the fifth biennial congress of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, which opened here today. Jane Addams, noted American social worker and international president of the league, presided.

Miss Edith Schweg, Austrian delegate, said many Austrians were in favor of a union with Germany for economic reasons and because of national sentiment. An ideal solution, she said, would be a union of all European countries into a United States of Europe.

Frau Hoppe-Schubert, German delegate, declared the German sentiment was in favor of the renunciation of all colonies and mandates. Relations between the native populations should be based upon the construction of human equality and the free exchange of products instead of being based on human exploitation.

Thirty-four countries are represented in the congress.

RISKS HIS LIFE TO GET FLOWER, AND FINDS GOLD

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Easton, Wash., July 9.—Anson Clark, of Ellensburg, risked his life to climb up a steep cliff to grasp the whim of a girl who had wanted a peculiar, brilliantly-hued flower, growing in solitary grandeur on the mountain-side.

Clark picked the rare flower for his girl friend and he also picked up, at roots, a shining bit of yellow metal, which turned out to be a nugget of practically pure gold. Hurrying to his girl home, he returned with the piece of gold and brought down specimens of rich gold-bearing ore from which the nugget he discovered was a detached part.

HOUSTON TO FURNISH SENATOR FROM 23RD

Perry, Ga., July 9.—(Special.)—The democratic senatorial committee of the 23d district, composed of the counties of Taylor, Crawford, Houston and Peach, met at Fort Valley today to decide which county should furnish the senator for this year. Under the rotation plan it was Houston's time and the committee agreed.

The friends of Frank M. Greene, of Perry, are urging him to make the race.

Tolerance First Among Virtues, Says Clemenceau

Paris, July 9.—(AP)—Tolerance is one of the greatest of virtues in the opinion of Georges Clemenceau. France's war premier, as expressed in extracts from his long-expected book on civilization appearing today L'Illustration.

"One virtue above all I would recommend for obtaining a happy fulfillment of our personal evolution, and thereby of our general civilization, and that is tolerance," M. Clemenceau writes. "Tolerance is the virtue which facilitates all of our accords that show forbearance to one another by opening every avenue of life leading to freedom of the human mind."

M. Clemenceau, pink cheeked and remarkably hale despite his 85 years, today chatted about his forthcoming book with the detachment of a critic. It will be called "Au Soir de la Pensée," which may be roughly translated as "Thoughts in the Evening of Life."

The former premier said that he expected to publish it both in France and the United States but that he expected that in the meanwhile he had given the manuscript to L'Illustration. "The editor is picking out bits which he thinks would be interesting to the general public," M. Clemenceau said. "The first one, appearing this week, is taken from toward the end of the book. My idea is to bring together what man is able to tell himself about through the several sciences."

Asked if he brought out his own philosophy of life in his book, he answered: "Yes, I think that if the entire book was read you could find here and there my personal philosophy."

In his discussion of tolerance in today's extracts from his book, M. Clemenceau also says, "Mutual responsibility, joint interests and tolerance will make us human in the finest sense of the expression. As for what will be the eventual consequences, Cosmos will dispose of us in due time. The way to employ our day is to do it in the way for our posterity into the future."

It is not likely that the French text of the book will be published before March, 1927, and it will be somewhat later when the American translation appears.

Was in despair over stubborn eczema Seemed like a miracle when Resinol healed

Barrington, R. I., Dec. 23.—"I wish the whole world to know what Resinol Ointment has done for me and my baby. I had given up hope of ever finding anything to cure the eczema on my ears. I was troubled with it two whole years, using all different kinds of ointments without showing any good results. Many of them—even prescribed remedies—only made the trouble worse. My mother-in-law, who had used Resinol Ointment for many years, told me she had used it on her children when they were babies and had never been without it. I then tried it on my ears and found that it worked like a miracle. After the third day my ears were better and within a week my eczema was cured. It was the most wonderful color again. I use it on my baby whenever he needs it. Only one application will heal it." (Signed) Mrs. Sebastian De Stefano, 85 County Road.

BLESSING OR CURSE—"Blessed be the day when a blessing and a curse: A blessing, if it be the day when the Lord will be glorified; a curse, if it be the day when the Lord will be dishonored."—Psalm 134:3.

THE CHECK EXCHANGE. The New York clearing house has abandoned the long established system of compulsory collection and exchange charges on out-of-town banks. It leaves the matter entirely discretionary with member banks.

The New York clearing house is to be commended for its action, and the same action should be taken by the clearing house of Atlanta and that of every other banking center.

All the larger banks in the country should at the earliest moment abandon a practice for which there is no real justification. It imposes a tax upon remitters by check for a service in which no element of risk enters and which is but the usual service that any bank—certainly any large bank—owes to its customers who furnish the actual resources from which their earnings are made.

Every business institution must perform public service for which it receives no direct compensation. And yet, in most cases, these public services not only make, but concentrate about such institutions a spirit of public sentiment which is essential to success. While this is true of private business institutions it is far more true of quasi-public institutions as are banks. Utilities are quasi-public institutions and are as much dependent upon the services to the public from which there are no direct revenues as for those services for which the public is expected to pay.

A newspaper is a quasi-public institution, but it is dependent upon its subscriptions and the sale of advertising space for its fixed revenues, from which it is enabled to operate. And yet no newspaper can succeed that does not devote its best energies to public welfare, and it is daily advertising worth-while undertakings, and performing numberless other public services, that money, per se, cannot purchase.

Banks operate and earn upon turning over on interest accounts the funds it holds for its depositors. If it operates upon its own capital only it ceases to be a bank but a money brokerage firm or corporation. As long as it is a bank it is a quasi-public institution, and there are services without remuneration that it should perform for the public, and certainly for its own customers who create its earning capital. The collection of checks on out-of-town banks should be one of those services. There is neither moral nor economic justification for taxing such checks with a percentage collection fee.

The New York clearing house, the largest bank group in America, has seen the wisdom of abandoning the compulsory exchange charges. Atlanta should follow New York's example.

THE SAFETY SCHOOL. The Atlanta Safety Council has performed a genuine and outstanding service to the community by the conduct for several weeks of a safety driving school, with entertaining lectures on different phases of traffic safety delivered by experts in all lines of industry, including safety directors of railroads and other utility corporations.

The school has been attended by several hundred Atlanta drivers, the interest increasing from time to time to such an extent that many of the corporations employing large numbers of drivers entered heartily into cooperation and had their drivers attend almost to a man. The school has closed for the summer, but another will be opened this fall. The citizens of Atlanta owe this organization a vote of sincere gratitude for carrying the problems of safety on the streets and highways direct to those upon whom its solution so largely rests.

SOUTHERN PUBLISHERS. The Southern Newspaper Publishers' association will probably hold its silver jubilee convention in Atlanta in 1927. It was organized in this city 24 years ago and the directors—who will fix the place of the next meeting—are said to be united in favor of the 25th anniversary meeting being held at this place where the association was organized.

The organization is composed of publishers of daily newspapers throughout the south, and is one of the strongest regional press associations in the country, maintaining permanent offices with a highly efficient manager in charge who looks after the mutual interests of its members, the maintenance of a code of ethics, and the interests of the public as served by the members. Cranston Williams, a Georgian, for years in practical editorial harness, and later secretary to Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, has been the manager for two years and has served faithfully and well. He will continue in that capacity. The new president of the organization is John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times. He succeeds Walter C. Johnson, of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News, who has given years of highly trained and valuable service to the association.

Atlanta will give the publishers a royal welcome in 1927. A more important convention will not be held here next year.

LEAGUE CONTRIBUTORS. The list of contributors of more than $500 each to the Anti-Saloon league since January 1, 1925, has been made public by the senate primary investigating committee. It contains no surprises. There are no large contributors, it appears. The Rockefellers, father and son, gave $20,000 and that headed the list. There were only four contributions in excess of $2,000, and only 13 others of $500 or more.

And yet, it will be recalled that Wayne B. Wheeler objected strenuously to the publication of the list, as harmless as it is.

The reason for this appears very obvious upon analysis, and comes out of what the list does not show rather than what it does show.

The Anti-Saloon league, by its own statements to the committee, has been spending millions of dollars in elections, just as it spent large sums in Pennsylvania. Its disbursements for the ostensible purpose of influencing legislation through providing for the defeat of this candidate and the election of that candidate, etc., perhaps are in excess of that of any other lobby known to American history.

And yet, where does the money come from? Not from large contributors. That fact has been established.

It is that very fact, and the natural deduction, that influenced Mr. Wheeler possibly in objecting to the publication.

The income of the Anti-Saloon league obviously comes from the overwhelming multitude of small pledges made as the result of church meetings, emotional addresses, church assessments, etc., all of which aggregate millions of dollars of direct taxation upon those who are least able to pay, to maintain this gigantic political machine in Washington.

Prohibition lecturers, among them—as proven—members of congress, are paid to go into the smaller towns and rural communities all over America, arouse intense emotional interests in temperance by picturing the horrors of intemperance, and then under the spell of such situations "sign up" the auditors to pledge cards agreeing to remit so much a month for a year—or, in most instances, for five years—to this scheme.

After the pledge cards have been thus signed the system of collection becomes similar to that of collecting on installment furniture, or the monthly or weekly payments to loan sharks.

It is this army of small contributors, for which a regularly paid staff of orator pledge agents are maintained to honeycomb the nation and work particularly among the poorer classes, that Mr. Wheeler undoubtedly wanted to hide, by his objections, the facts being established that millions poured in from some source, and that no large contributors helped in the cause.

It is not difficult to understand the motives that have kept the workings of the Anti-Saloon league so secret until the senate committee forced disclosures that are anything but wholesome.

The man who is continually boasting of the big rain he brought when he prayed for it, ought to keep still a while and give rain a chance to rain.

The Albany (Ga.) Herald puts prospecting candidates on notice that "when the office seeks a man it isn't necessary to ring the door bell more than once."

JUST A FEW THOUGHTS.
No matter how great an achievement in this world, it can never be so great as the mind which conceived it. Thought alone is dominant in this marvelous make-up of ours. A few thoughts have often changed the course of human history. A mind's "yes" or "no" has made multitudes follow, create, build, and carry on.

We are only just beginning to understand the power that is hidden within the folds of the brain. There is not a vital organ of the body which does not look to this master for healthy guidance.

All through this life, so far, one man's few thoughts have inspired and over the years because they came when I needed them most at a critical time during my college career. They were full of decisive conclusions and urged me on, "as from a Father to his own son," he said.

It's the thought that goes to the largest number of people, that goes to the hearts and spurs their minds. Often the memory of a man's whole life is summed up in just one thought, a single word, a phrase, a sentence, a line of poetry, a poem or piece of prose. "Thanatopsis" by Bryant, "The Deserted Village" by Goldsmith, "The Sketch Book" by Irving, "Opportunity" by Ingersoll, "The Message to Garcia" by Hubbard, or the "Gettysburg Speech" by Lincoln.

Just a few thoughts, but perhaps those few have crystallized a life of work, pain, or understanding. They were full of thought. Let them be harnessed and groomed before you send them on their long errand.

LIGHTS OF PARIS

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Coming down the boulevard, the good Parisians don't care a rap for public opinion. When they meet their wives or sweethearts they hug, kiss, embrace and mush as if there were not another person in the world. As a matter of fact, these scenes of reunion supply the average boulevardier with lots of mirth and entertainment.

Here are a couple of women from Normandy in strange, old-fashioned peasant costumes and over there a couple of high stepping damsels who act as if they are not used to pavements and should only walk on velvet or plush carpets. Everywhere the French uniform, blue with lots of gold and silver. For the information of the stranger, we might add that the headgear in the French army does not need to be regulation uniform. The officer or soldier with money can buy himself a cap of luxe. Hence the variety in uniform caps, the one more beautiful than the other.

The whicker as a sign of aristocratic descent has not gone out of fashion. To be frank about it, Paris has the New York east side beat.

Most of the guides, by the way, look like escaped convicts of the old type and—maybe they are. For a dollar you can drive till you get tired in a Parisian taxi. When you arrive at a destination and are told ten francs, that is to say 30 cents, you pay as if in a dream.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW
Glorious
Beer.
A little dispute has arisen in Europe as to the comparative qualities of English and French beer. Frankly the French beer brewers ought to be ashamed of themselves for their attitude. For is there not enough glory in possessing the marvelous wines of champagne and the soothing wines of Chateau? Centuries ago Thomas Becket when he went on a mission to the court of France was careful to take with him two wagonloads of beer in iron-bound cases as the most acceptable gift to the king of France for he wrote "the French admire our beer; for it is wholesome; clear of the color of wine and of a bitter taste, still that does not mean to say the French prefer it to wine. D'Artagnan did not relish the British beverages a great deal. He had a device of a time when many men he was employing said: 'I am keeping up five families and six automobiles besides my own.'"

Scrubbing Friars.
Bishop Barnes long ago had a vision of a future in which journalists shall be the preaching friars of a new religion. He had the idea from Carlyle—and it seems all the more worth repeating because Carlyle had seldom anything good to say on the fourth estate and was even guilty of the diatribe: "Journalism is just dishonesty. But here is what he wrote on another occasion: 'A preaching friar settles himself in every village and builds a pulpit which he calls newspaper. Look well, thou seest everywhere the new clergy of the mendicant orders, some barefooted, some almost bareheaded, fashion itself into shape and teach and preach zealously enough for copper alms and the love of God.' It is not necessary to doubt Carlyle's good faith. It is a pretty

The death warrant of Charles I. is kept in the house of lords library in a glass case for all to see. Late in the afternoon of the 30th of January, 1649, it was found decayed and lost to posterity. By a special chemical treatment it was rendered safe for another 200 years. The warrant was discovered by Colonel Hunkins on the morning of January 30, 1649. The document has lived through an exciting history. That it ever survived is nothing less than a miracle. It was preserved on parchment and on wood. It was kept in a bottle and it was smeared with varnish. It survived, however, our present day and age, and a new chemical treatment lately administered will keep it in good shape although many of the signatures are faded and almost illegible.—P. V. P. ## Looking and Listening

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Secretary of War Davis has accepted a cutting from the weeping willow tree beside the original tomb of Napoleon, to be planted in Arlington cemetery as a memorial. Which reminds me that in the rear yard of the old home of Ex-President Andrew Johnson, in Greenville, Tennessee, there is a noble weeping willow tree grown from such a cutting. An old soldier of Napoleon brought it over and presented it to Mr. Johnson and the tree must be now fully seventy-odd years old. It overhangs what was once a bold and beautiful spring.

President Coolidge, with his personal and official outfit, got away this week to the Adirondacks for his summer rest. I hope he will rest, but unless he took along a liberal bottle of "penicillin" I very much doubt that he will. It was up in those wild woods and encountered more flies, bugs, ants, gnats and mosquitoes than anywhere else on the globe. President Harrison and I were together one summer at Cape May Point and fought the New Jersey stegomyia to a fare-you-well—our farewells to them. But the Adirondack deer are the nonpareil of the forest. They seem to bore into you with miniature electric torches and work in gangs like Chicago gunmen. The president and his party have my profound sympathy.

Fifty years ago I was visiting the centennial at Philadelphia. Twenty-five years ago I was officially at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. But now I am purposely keeping away from the sequel-centennial at Philadelphia and advise any of our Georgia people who wish to see that show to wait until it is there to see. Just now it is all construction and confusion. Only a few minor foreign exhibits are in exposable condition. The principal buildings are unfinished and scarcely any of the greater exhibits are ready for inspection. Government experts who are detailed over there, tell me the exposition will not be worth a once-over until around September first. So save time and money until you can get the worth of them.

Clem Shaver—why, he's chairman of the democratic national committee, don't you know. Well, he wishes it were possible to hold the 1928 democratic convention at Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, in Virginia. It is a highly sentimental thought—but where could the delegates get bed and board? And what a bother it would be to the Al Smith delegates to conceal the fact that so bone-dry a state as Virginia! No, bud, the convention will not be held where its undemocratic doings would outrage the ashes of the great apostle of democracy. It is more likely to go to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, or Louisville. The last named will bid for it strongly, and I think the south is entitled to it.

The Harmon Foundation will make eight awards this year "for distinguished achievements in the field of letters, science, education, religion and race relations." The awards are $100 and across any of our experts in each field. The first award in the seven departments first named is $400 and a gold medal; second is $100 and a gold medal; third is $500 and a gold medal. Nominations for these awards are to be made up to August 1st, and thinking it would be the right thing for us Atlanta people to nominate Dr. R. D. Stinson as worthy to receive the first award in the field of education. He richly merits it, in my opinion of his work.

Around the army and navy club, where he has many intimates, it is frankly understood that General Anderson, the "dry czar," is really going to throw up his impossible job on the first of September. On the eve of going to London to negotiate new terms with the right-amonging treaty it would have been bad policy for him to say so out loud, but he is disgusted and determined to quit the drive. Can you blame him when you look at some of the exhibits in his office?

For instance, in 1925 in the middle of Alabama the average sentence of 3.08 days and $60.70 fines; in Georgia, northern district, there were 682 convictions, with average sentence of 28 days and $42.11 fines; in Georgia, southern, there were 661 convictions, with average sentences of 34 days and $37.93 fines.

Did you notice that Senator Jim Reed said the other day that "it has been slanderously charged that I am a wet?" Now, curious folks are asking me the meaning of that. There is a suspicion that he is looking toward the democratic presidential nomination and is advertising that he is "perfectly impartial" in voir dire language between the drys and the wets! He can even claim authorship of the "Reed bone-dry amendment" and declare that his present pursuit of the Anti-Saloon league is because he regards it as "a republican institution"—which it is. Anyhow, there is much speculation about his activities in making campaign speeches to the democrats by the senate's information and action.

British-American Meat War Seen

By London Paper

London, July 9.—(AP)—The Daily Mail, which has been featuring the British-American meat war conducted by an attempt by packers of the United States to capture the world market.

The newspaper says today: "Those who are in a position to judge declare that the war now raging between British and American exporters of Argentine meat, the trade in the British Isles is but the prelude to the fight in which the interests of the whole British empire are at stake. The British firms who are now strongly resisting these opponents are defeated, then America will have more than half won the domination of the world's meat markets."

The Daily Mail asserts that the present issue is due to the breakdown of a conference of all firms engaged in Argentine meat trade, respecting the quarantines each firm should import into Great Britain.

"The Americans, represented by the Swifts, Armour and the Wilsons, have attempted," the Mail continues, "to drive British firms off the market by sending Argentine chilled beef to Great Britain regardless of the known requirements, thereby forcing down prices and causing Argentine meat to be sold below the cost of importation. They, of course, lost several million pounds, but their control of the American home supply enabled them to force up prices in the United States so as to cover their losses here."

PRICE CUTTING
HELD RESPONSIBLE.
Buenos Aires, July 9.—(AP)—Price cutting by British and American packers of Argentine meat, according to the opinion here, obviously is responsible for the sale of Argentine meat at Smithfield, the central market for London, for less than the cost of importation, as reported in London advices.

The firms chiefly involved are said to be the vetery interests represented by the Swifts, Armour and the Wilsons. Officials of packing houses, however, are disinclined to discuss the matter, but it was admitted today that the British and American interests, so far as could be learned in other quarters, the rivalry has been on for many a year and is largely with a view to gaining the percentage of sales in England.

Off the Reel
Much Mowing of Tolerance
BY SAM W. SMALL.

The peculiar and persistent note in the public eulogies of Jefferson in the past week is the stressing of his religious liberty doctrine and a demand for more "religious tolerance" in this country and time.

But who is suffering from religious intolerance, bigotry and torture? The Roman Catholics are not. They have just staged the most splendid religious festival of all the ages, with a dozen princes of the Holy Roman Empire as chief actors, and with constant precision and people applauding throughout the nation. Mooney and Harria, who are Catholic editors, have been awarded Pulitzer prizes for lambasting the Roman Catholic clergy. And a big Catholic governor is the headline contender for the democratic nomination for next president. Certainly the Catholics are not suffering.

Are the Jews afflicted by persecutions and pogroms? Well, not so you see. One Jew, named Jacob Schiff, is holding it his own, and then some, it is our Jewish brethren. If any of our tribes has got the rest of us by the nose, it is the Jews. In O. C. D. terms, it is these same sons of Israel. If they are complaining, what else do they see that they want? Is it the negro who is persecuted and needs tolerance? How come? Emerson truly said "Every man makes his own hell," and after 75 years of life among negroes I know seldom seen one suffering except for his misdeeds. If the negro will keep the law, the law will keep him in peace and safety. His life and happiness are secure when he deserves the sympathy and defense of honest, law-loving men.

The Jews were persecuted about 2,000 years ago. The lower occasions to persecute them.

Bobby 6 Strokes Behind Leader With 149 Total

Dick Hawkins Says Dopesters Looking For Jones To Rally

Gale Played Havoc With Bobby's Game and Two Penalty Strokes Added to Atlanta's High Score.

Scot County Club, Columbus, Ohio, July 9.—(Special.)—The greatest of all golfers, fighting gamely for every advantage but dogged continuously by an adverse luck which refused to leave his heels for even a minute—that is the story of Bobby Jones' second round in the national open golf tournament at Scot County club today.

Laboring against a wind which approached a gale throughout the afternoon, and beset by trouble in the form of two penalty strokes for which he was in no way to blame, Bobby went out in 39 strokes and struggled through the home stretch to a 149 total. He now is tied with Jack Forrester, of Short Hills, N. J., for sixth place with a 149 for the first 36 holes. Bill Mehlhorn still leads the pack with a 143.

While a gallery of fully 3,000 persons stormed their way over, around and through the ropes and grained with Bobby at putt after putt missed by inches and drive after drive was carried to the rough by the gale, the stalwart Atlanta never once lost his nerve and would have had a much worse score but for his great recovery when trouble loomed.

The terrific driving of the Atlanta proved him in good lead on but few holes and it resulted in unfavorable lies in many cases when the wind carried the ball from the fairway on what seemed from the tee to be perfect drives.

Lacked Magic Touch.

All this does not mean that Bobby was playing Bobby Jones golf. He was not. He lacked the magic touch and ease of execution which have been his for many a year, but he was score without the two penalty strokes and without the loss of several other strokes through the agency of ill luck would have been right up near par figures.

There is one consolation to come from all this tale of hard luck and bad breaks. It lies in the fact that Bobby is notorious for his equalizing effects and the pendulum of luck looking for Bobby to stage a record comeback as the pendulum of fortune swings in his direction in the next two rounds. One thing is certain—it is not safe to count Bobby Jones out of any tournament when he is led by only six strokes and there are yet 36 holes to play.

Starting the round, Bobby missed his second shot to the right of the green and it rolled to the lip of the trap. His chip shot was 10 feet short and he failed to hole the putt for a par four, taking a five. His terrific drive on the second hole carried over the brow of the hill but the wind supplied such a hook that it rolled to the rough on the left of the fairway. His long iron shot from the rough was dead on about 15 feet from the pin. His first putt missed by inches and he was forced to take a par four.

A regulation par four on the third was the result of a tremendous drive by Bobby which landed on the left of the green. His second putt was down for a four.

Carried To Banner.

On the 108-yard fourth, the gale again played its ironie game and Bobby's tee shot which landed in the bunker on the right of the green. A chip was short of the pin by 20 feet and he took two putts for a buzzard four, leaving him two strokes over par going to the fifth tee.

Then the immense gallery was won its greatest treat of the day. Bobby hooked his tee shot and it rolled to the rough on the left but it rolled clear to a downhill lie near the edge of the rough. He then played a brilliant shot home to the green dead-on but 50 feet short of the pin. His ball lay several feet below the hole with a straight putt on the green between ball and pin. Bobby studied the lie for several minutes then holed the putt for a birdie three as the gallery broke the tomb-like stillness with thunderous roar of approval.

On the 448-yard sixth Bob made his par five despite a hook on his long second shot which landed in the rough at the left of the green. His pitch and two putts made up the balance of the five strokes.

With the wind at his back on the seventh Bobby sent his second shot to the green, but it rolled across and over the lip of the back trap. His chip was six feet over the cup and he holed for a perfect four.

The long eighth against the wind proved too much for Bobby who was striving bravely to pick up the strokes lost on the earlier holes. His drive was perfect but the wind carried his long second shot to the trap at the right of the green. A chip shot was

Mooney Is Defeated By Murray in Tennis Semi-Finals Battle

Atlanta Net Star Wins First Set, 6-3, But New Orleans Crack Hits Fast Stride and Wins Three Straight Sets.

New Orleans, July 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dan Murray, New Orleans, eliminated Jack Mooney, of Atlanta, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-0, in the second semi-finals singles match of the southern tennis tournament here today.

Jones Is Badly Off During Second Round; Gunn Has Withdrawn

Howard Beckett, Also of Atlanta, Discontinues Play After Having Bad Round—Mehlhorn Still Leads Field.

For golfers who need a rest, Bobby found this out on the first hole today, for he got only slightly off line with his second shot but found a trap that cost him a five on the 416-yard hole.

Jones steadied to par on the next two holes, but pulled to a trap on the 180-yard fourth, taking four. The gallery applauded when he recovered from this loss at the 445-yard fifth by sinking a putt for a birdie three. Perfect figures graced his card on the next three, but he pitched short at the 140-yard ninth to a cavernous trap, when he failed to escape on the first try, taking five for a three hole.

Slices on Tenth.

Few in the gallery doubted, even then, that Jones would rectify his 39 in part on the homeward trip, but their faith began to falter when he sliced to the stone bank of the brook at the tenth. He had to drop back with a penalty and took five for the 304-yard hole. He balanced this with a birdie three at the eleventh and added a couple of pars. He was about to annex a third when his putter accidentally moved the ball on the fifteenth green, causing him another penalty and a five.

Jones added to this by missing a two-foot putt on the green of the 135-yard seventeenth, taking four. Then came the climax and one of the few sevens that have graced his cards since he became a star. He sliced his drive to tangled rough on the 480-yard home hole. He barely moved the ball a few feet with his second shot and then pulled clear across the fairway to another rough, whence he just reached the green in four.

Three putts from 40 feet made the seven and concluded Jones' most disastrous round in years.

Mehlhorn was even par on the first nine but went one over on each of Washington men were left on base.

Columbus, Ohio, July 9.—Bill Mehlhorn was still the front runner in the national open golf championship when the handsome athletes had stowed their umbrella handles back in the lockers at the end of the second day's play today. So this seems to be a good time to give Bill's measurements and his table of contents.

Bill under a hood, and therefore, naturally qualified to shoot golf with the best Scotch professionals who never carried anything more vulgar than a golf bag.

His father being in the contracting business, perhaps Bill did get a few dollars to put on his shoes but for the peace of the game, it can be stated that he is neither a hot-carrier nor a cold-carrier. He has the stoop of his broad shoulders is rather significant at that.

Bill was bound around about violence. He accused a fellow who climbed that tree near the 18th green at the Texas open tournament and released him. "Is your old man just as sloppy?" cried Bill. "You ought to rudge his ball for an important putt and the punch has continued under the cushion of his ill-chosen remark."

Melhorn just now has only a very small claim on the championship, for if he is to play in the finals tomorrow and Turnesa should take 143 there will be no great interest in Bill.

the guy who climbed the tree and shot off his mouth in Texas. Or, if Bobby Jones, who is six shots behind him, should save a few strokes tomorrow and Mehlhorn should squander a few, the pieces that go chattering over the wires from the telegraph tables on the club verandah, will further celebrate Bobby Jones and make only passing mention of Bill Mehlhorn.

Jones does seem to be in the running for the championship still, notwithstanding the cap of six strokes

DALTON ASSUMES FLEET HEAD DUTIES

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—Brigadier General A. C. Dalton, retired, today assumed his duties as president of the emergency fleet corporation, prepared, he said, to support loyally any program or policy the shipping board might adopt. He recognized the new corporation head said in discussing informally his views, that it was a subordinate organization of the board and could not independently while he would follow that path, "honestly and conscientiously," he added, he would expect to remain in office.

"And when I cannot, I will be ready to join the ever-growing list of ex-presidents of the corporation," he remarked, smiling. The new chief said he came to his task with definite ideas as to the problem of the American merchant marine developed after study for a long time on this subject. He would submit his plans to the board in due time, he explained, and was not prepared to discuss them as yet in any definite way.

General Dalton emphasized his belief, however, that in order to combat the handicap of cheap labor and cheap ship operation abroad, the American merchant fleet must be provided "with the most mechanically efficient ship units" and with efficiently equipped tidewater terminals. Both the building program and the terminal development were matters in which the government must aid, he said, if the domestic transportation system of the United States, more efficient than any in the world, was to be given its full share under the American flag to carry American goods to their place in world markets.

The new president deferred all questions as to changes in personnel in the fleet corporation forces. He was in the office, vacated yesterday by his predecessor, Captain Elmer E. Crowley, all day and the resignation which is customary for incoming presidents to sign on taking over, subject to the board's pleasure, was awaiting only his signature to be filed with the board.

Change Was Expected. Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board amplified today the brief announcement he made yesterday after the sudden removal of Captain Crowley and General Dalton's election. The change, his statement said, had been expected "some time."

"A majority of the board felt that we required the services of a big executive trained in organization on a large scale—a man who had had long experience in important executive work," he explained.

"At the same time we wanted a man who had been actively engaged in ocean transportation. General Dalton seemed to us to fill the bill. His experience while in charge of the army transport service and in handling water transportation during the war is common knowledge."

The chairman said that General Dalton's "knowledge of and enthusiasm for a real American merchant marine are well known," adding that the new president had worked with the committee appointed by the president in 1924 to study the subject. Secretaries Mellon, Weeks, (Wilbur and Hoover, Chairman O'Connor and former President Leigh Palmer of the corporation having been members of the group.

No Change in Policy. The new appointment implied no change in shipping board policy of placing sufficient authority in the hands of a single executive to administer corporation affairs. Mr. O'Connor said, adding: "The policy as fixed by the board in 1924 for consolidations and ship sales involving all possible reduction in administrative expenses and other economies will be persistently pursued."

"The American merchant marine is here to stay and with General Dalton in charge of the administrative operating affairs, we confidently expect to go forward in that direction."

General Dalton himself described his conception of the while as combined "liquidation and operation." He made no comment on the plan now before the board, proposed by Commissioner Teller, to offer the remaining big government-owned lines of the United States lines and the American Merchant Line, for sale to private operators. Commissioner Teller put his resolution, advertising the liquidation of the lines and setting out the board's policy in final shape today, but it probably will not be taken up until Tuesday for approval in textual form.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

ALTHOUGH THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE WAS FORMALLY ADOPTED ON JULY 4 (1776), IT WAS NOT UNTIL AUGUST 2 THAT A COPY OF THIS FAMOUS PAPER ENCLOSED ON PARCHEMENT WAS SIGNED BY FIFTY-SIX MEMBERS OF CONGRESS REPRESENTING THE THIRTEEN COLONIES. EACH SIGNER RISKED HIS LIFE, FOR THE BRITISH HAD BEEN ULTIMATELY VICTORIOUS. THE SIGNERS MIGHT HAVE BEEN EXECUTED FOR TREASON.

THERE WERE THOUSANDS LIVING IN AMERICA WHO REMAINED LOYAL TO KING GEORGE AND THESE TORIES, AS THEY WERE CALLED, HAD GIVEN THE PATRIOTS MUCH TROUBLE. AFTER THE DECLARATION, HOWEVER, THE TORIES WERE TREATED AS TRAITORS—THEIR PROPERTY WAS CONFISCATED AND THEIR CONDUCT REGULATED BY SEVERE LAWS.

THE DECLARATION COMPLETELY CHANGED THE STATUS OF THE AMERICAN COLONIES. NO LONGER WERE THEY REBELLIOUS PROVINCES RESISTING THE SOLDIERS OF THEIR KING, BUT A NEW, FREE NATION ENGAGED IN A WAR TO DRIVE A FOREIGN INVADER FROM THEIR SHORES.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE, WHICH MADE THE NATURAL RIGHTS OF MAN ITS CORNERSTONE, WAS THE LINK THAT BOUND AMERICA TO FREEDOM AND MARKED THE DAWN OF A NEW ERA FOR THE WORLD.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR COURT CHANGE

Washington, July 9.—(Special.)—Coincident with the announcement by Senator William E. Borah that he intends to carry his fight against the world court to every state in the union this summer, it is learned from the highest authority that state department officials have abandoned all hope of the American reservations to the international tribunal being accepted by member nations.

Shortly after the senate voted adherence to the world court protocol, the state department sent out feelers to all member nations, asking their reaction to the conditions attached to American entry. Almost without exception, the major powers represented on the court have informed the state department in diplomatic but emphatic language that there is little possibility of the American reservations being found acceptable.

Only two nations, both of which come within the minor classification, have approved the American reservations—Greece and Cuba. And the latter is said to have been governed largely by the paternal supervision of its affairs by the United States.

No Chance Seen.

In view of the several months that have passed since entry into the court was voted, and the fact that diplomatic exchanges that have taken place on the subject, state department officials have admitted privately that there is hardly a ghost of a chance that member nations will change their viewpoint. It is considered even more remote that the senate will take up the question again, so that department heads, including Secretary Kellogg, are considering burying the protocol in the archives of fruitless diplomatic effort.

Because of the very nature of the growth of motor bus lines, an overnight development, such regulation as was attempted was haphazard and incomplete. The situation was intensified by the three decisions of the supreme court holding that states have no power to regulate interstate bus traffic, and by the decision of the interstate commerce commission that it has no authority to regulate interstate bus commerce, thus leaving bus lines to operate over state lines without any regulation whatever, as they now do. This is the situation that the interstate commerce commission will study during the next three months, when it will hold hearings in 13 centers.

$10,000 DAMAGES ASKED WHEN MAN FAILS TO GET JOB

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and Chicago, Ill., July 9.—) Substitution of the word "month" for "Monday" in an important telegram led to the filing of a $10,000 damage suit here today against the Western Union Telegraph and Cable company.

Don E. Ahrens, of Detroit, asserts in the bill filed by Attorney William Spronger, that R. L. Newton, of Los Angeles, wired him to assume the management of an automobile sales company at $10,000 a year, to "report next Monday."

The telegram, as he received it, he says, read: "Report next month," and when he did report three weeks later the position was gone.

BRITISH SCHOONER, CREW AND LIQUOR FREE AFTER FIGHT

Mobile, Ala., July 9.—(P)—The British schooner Frances E., the first liquor boat ever brought into Mobile by the coast guard's anti-rum fleet, sailed out of the harbor today after being held a captive here for more than a year. The crew, the boat AB-20 accompanied the rum-runner as far as the three-mile limit and released her. She was the first British rum ship captured in the Gulf.

The release of the Frances E., together with about 500 cases of liquor, follows a long battle. Members of the crew were placed in jail, later indicted and then convicted in the federal court on liquor smuggling charges. The case created much interest in court circles, conviction of the crew being regarded as an important victory for the government in its fight on smugglers in this section.

The case of Frances E. was appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals at New Orleans several weeks ago and the decision of Judge Robert T. Ervin, of the federal court reversed. The ship was ordered released and her cargo placed back on her by federal customs employees.

ELECTRICAL STORM HITS SPARTA SECTION

Sparta, Ga., July 9.—(Special.)—This section was visited Wednesday afternoon by a severe electrical storm with some rain, lightning doing considerable damage to light and telephone lines near the city. For a few minutes the deafening roar of thunder sounded like artillery in action and appeared much more serious than was found after the storm subsided.

The damage to electric and phone lines was repaired Thursday.

A number of talks on scientific problems were heard. The attendance is large.

Napier Explains State's Position In Property Row

If the city of Chattanooga had agreed at the start simply to lease the property needed for its street extensions through Georgia-owned railroad property in that city, all litigation could have been avoided. Attorney General George M. Napier stated Friday, after his return from the Tennessee city.

The only interest the state has, Mr. Napier said, is protection of its title to the property, and it would be entirely satisfactory for Chattanooga to make what arrangements it liked with the Nashville Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad for use of the property for the 44 years remaining of the lease the railroad now has with the state.

The only thing the state seeks is to guarantee that its title to the property will be unimpaired at the end of the 44-year lease period. At that time two courses would be open to Chattanooga, Mr. Napier suggested. Either it could make settlement with Georgia for the future, or could return the property to Georgia in equally good condition as it is now.

ROCKWELL KENT GETS $500 DAMAGES IN CONTRACT SUIT

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and New York, July 9.—) Federal Judge Robert A. Inch today signed an order of settlement of a suit brought in Brooklyn Federal court by Rockwell Kent, well-known artist and author, against the Compagnie Francaise de Navigation, for $500 damages for breach of contract.

The suit was compromised for $500 and $250 counsel fees.

The action grew out of the failure of the steamship company to carry Rockwell Kent, Jr., last year. The lad was landed in Providence, R. I., and before relatives learned of the mishap he had been compelled to spend the night in a charity lodging house in the Rhode Island city.

122d Regiment Will Depart Sunday for Training Camp

OUTFIT WILL HAVE PART IN WELCOMING BOBBY JONES

Just prior to leaving Atlanta Sunday afternoon for the annual encampment on Tybee island, a battalion of "Atlanta's own," the 122d infantry regiment, national guard, will join in welcoming ceremonies for Bobby Jones, "Atlanta's own" great golfer, according to plans announced Friday afternoon by Adjutant General Charles N. Cox.

General Cox, his staff, a battalion of the regiment and the regimental band, will escort the renowned young Atlantian to the athletic club as a part of this city's program to honor the returning winner of the British open championship. At the new Athletic club the military escort will leave the remainder of the ceremonies to civilians and return to the station to board special trains for Tybee island, where more than 1,500 young north Georgians will spend the next two weeks in intensive training.

According to Lieutenant Colonel Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., executive officer of the regiment, everything around the camp is in readiness for arrival Monday morning of guardsmen from Atlanta, Calhoun, Elberton, Griffin, Cedartown, Marietta, and other points. Several score members of the regiment left earlier in the week for Tybee to prepare the camp for the regiment. Friday night, Captain Elbert G. Tuttle, with the service company, left the city and will add to the forces already arranging the camp for the annual two weeks training program.

Four special trains will leave the city Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and are scheduled to arrive in Tybee shortly after dawn Monday morning. Detraining and placing in position of equipment will get under way after a hot breakfast, which will be ready when trains arrive. By late Monday afternoon the camp is expected to be running smoothly, according to regimental officers.

Every precaution has been taken toward sanitation features of this year's camp, officers said Friday night, and members of the regiment will have the constant attention of leading Atlanta physicians and surgeons, officers in the regiment, who will attend camp.

INSTALLMENT LIV.
HOME!

The deduction might be a non sequitur, again, it might not. John left it at that.

"Right you are, Fletcher," he said. "Pick up Scott, and come back. I'm going round the Head of the Loch in the dinghy. Unless we have some luck within another hour we must abandon the search till morning. You'll stand fast until all our scouts are called in."

"Ay, that I will. I suppose, sir, there's nae doot Mr. Alistair's dead?" "He died so quickly that he never uttered a cry. I cannot tell you yet how he was killed. It was a terrible wound in the throat—the sort of thing usually caused by a jagged piece of shell."

"The Lord save us!" exclaimed Fletcher. "We had enough of that France without bringin' it tae Inverlochlie."

It was nearly midnight when the little band of watchers gathered in the village street. Their vigil had yielded not the tiniest scrap of information as to the whereabouts of the suspected murderer. But many other things had been determined. Connington had brought no luggage of any description, but the grocer, at Alistair Pantom's request, had promised to reserve a room for the stranger should it be needed late that evening. The missing boat, readily identified as the property of a

"You will find a roast duck far more digestible, sir."

Local fisherman, was found beached not far from Colonel Grant's house. A bathhouse had gone; presumably it would be picked up when daylight rendered a thorough scrutiny of the lochside practicable.

No one paid any real attention to the absence of the bathhouse until Furneaux heard of it.

"Ah!" he chorled, "that's the missing link! The very thing, of course. No wonder poor Pantom's head was nearly torn off his shoulders. What an implement!"

He said no more at the moment. He had just completed a long telegram to Scotland Yard which would be dispatched to Mallaig early next day, and the sight of it caused John to redraft the message he had already written to Leslie. When the two emerged from the postoffice John was carrying a bag.

"Where are you and the others staying, Mr. Furneaux?" he inquired.

"For the time being we are the guests of your noble father," said the detective languidly.

"Well, cheer up! The old man may have his faults, but he will do you well. Have your traps gone?"

"Not yet. I must wait here till Frensham and Sheldon return from Mallaig. I thought it best that they should go in and supplement P. C. Campbell's report or the inspector would surely think the poor man had gone crazy with the heat. They should be here any minute now. Frensham is a noble fellow. We came through from Stirling today, yet he thought nothing of tackling the extra twenty miles tonight. The British aristocracy may not have brains but it certainly has grit."

"Are you too tired to walk down to the Head of the Loch?"

"What to do?" Haven't you just come from there?"

"I want to give a whistle or two. If Spot is within hearing he will come."

"But why did you send him in pursuit in the first instance if you recall him now?"

"I knew you would say that, yet I hate the thought of going indoors without him."

"Well, please yourself. I shall be sorry to think that our only effective scout should be taken off the trail. Besides, what harm will a night in the open do him?"

"None. I wouldn't worry if I were with him. I'm just a bit rattled, I suppose, by the extraordinary sequence of events since Spot and I strolled out from Macdonald's place shortly before nine o'clock. . . . Is this your car?"

"I hope so. I'm most confoundedly tired. I didn't sleep in the train, and I feel motorizing rather a bore. When I retire from the service I'll buy a donkey and cart and jog along country lanes for the remainder of my existence at four miles per."

"I have not had a chance of asking you sooner. How on earth do you come to be here at all?"

"Firstly, because I pride myself on a fine sense of what the higher criticism calls 'the dramatic unities.' At best, life is a tragedy, and all the indications pointed to a strong fifth act being played here at Inverlochlie. In the second place, your friend Leslie was greatly concerned, and persuaded the commissioner to free Sheldon and me for a few days' extra departmental work in the north. Thirdly, Sir Arthur Frensham had a friend in Stirling who would surely lend him a first rate car. Lastly, I was particularly anxious to stop you from being a fool, and I think I was only just in time."

Furneaux stepped into the middle of the road, and extended his arms. The car which John had heard in the distance drew up. In a few seconds they were speeding through the dark. Spot was not forgotten. It was with a wrench that his master resolved to leave him to his own devices until daylight.

Frensham was driving, with Sheldon by his side, so John could only exchange a word of greeting with his very starchy friend. But Frensham did manage to throw over his shoulder a somewhat remarkable comment: "So the old man turned up trumps after all, Johnnie?"

"Yes, thank goodness," said Pantom.

"I thought he would. Leslie thought so, too. A wise bird—Leslie!"

John could not fathom the depth of his remark. It puzzled him, but slipped his mind at the moment in the emotion of alighting once more at the steps of his old home, and gazing through the open doorway into the familiar vista of the great entrance hall, with its noble staircase rising at the back.

The butler was ready for him. It was he who had flung wide the door and now hurried to the side of the car.

"Welcome back to Inverlochlie, Master John," he said, with a dignified bow. "His lordship told me you were expected, so your own room is ready. If Sir Arthur Frensham, Mr. Furneaux and Mr. Sheldon will point out their respective portmanteaux I will see that they are placed in their apartments. Supper is laid in the dining room. His lordship is coming now to escort you there."

"Splendid!" chuckled Furneaux. "Do tell me your name."

"Timms, sir."

"Better and better. I'm Furneaux. Tomorrow, Timms, you and I will impart secrets to each other concerning the superior claret. Meanwhile, I can eat. Is this the season for venison pasties?"

"They are seldom made, nowadays, sir."

"Well, well. A slice of boar's head, then. Or a roasted cygnet?"

"You will find a roast duck far more digestible, sir. In fact, at this time of night I would suggest a plate of soup, followed by a little chicken and ham."

Be he ever so weary, Furneaux might be trusted to start some tomfoolery of that sort when it was most needed.

'Bob' La Follette Leaves To Help Blaine's Fight Against Senator Lenroot

La Follette Hopes To Retire to Private Life Man Who Was Once His Father's Protege.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, July 9.—The youngest senator, Robert M. La Follette, will start back to Wisconsin tomorrow to direct personally his first big political fight. None of the election campaigns this year will be more unique. Young La Follette goes out hoping to retire to private life the man who once was his father's most promising political protege, Senator Irwin L. Lenroot, whose seat is sought by Governor John J. Blaine, La Follette candidate.

Though now a stalwart republican, Lenroot once was the chief La Follette lieutenant. The elder La Follette made him speaker of the Wisconsin assembly and sent him to congress. Lenroot was and still is an able debater and an effective legislator. La Follette, senior, placed great hope in him. But about the time La Follette lost his influence because of his opposition to the war, Wisconsin's other senator, Paul Husting, was killed in a hunting accident, and Lenroot, now attacking La Follette, was elected. He has since remained in the regular wing of the republican party.

Seen as Boyish David.

Beside this veteran figure, backed by the national republican organization, young La Follette appears as a boyish David. But confident nevertheless, for his father bequeathed to him one of the strongest state political organizations in the country. It was an organization strong enough to elect the 30-year-old son last fall with 237,719 votes when the nearest rival, supported by Chairman Butler of the republican national committee, commanded but 91,318 votes. This organization, though as powerful in its domain, is hardly to be compared to that of Vero's in Philadelphia, for it was built on La Follette's "Wisconsin idea." It got its votes regularly, not by hiring watchers at $10 a head, but by attacking corrupt conditions in the state, substituting direct primaries, breaking up the political control of the railroad and lumber interests, and setting up a regime of economy which wiped out the standing debt of the state. For these services, La Follette was able year after year for a generation to go to the people and elect his candidate almost invariably.

So that when he died, he turned over to Young Bob this powerful organization well settled in all strategic positions in the state. Factional disturbances developed, but thus far they have been held in check. Young Bob succeeded in pleasing differences between the present La Follette governor, Blaine, is to be the senatorial candidate against Lenroot. Attorney General Akers will run for governor. La Follette's younger brother, Philip, now district attorney for Dane county, Wisconsin, will hide his time, but eventually he probably will become governor and possibly United States senator. He is not yet 30 and has decided to wait before seeking further advancement.

Prohibition and the world court will figure in the campaign. Lenroot, voted to submit the 18th amendment and who has voted with drys since that time, has declared for a referendum. Blaine has declared against summary laws. Lenroot was the administrative spokesman on the world court because, Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, refused to sponsor it. Blaine opposes the court. Both have announced their opposition to the seating of William S. Vare should be elected senator in Pennsylvania this fall.

Republican politicians will watch this fight with interest because it will indicate whether Wisconsin is to continue in the insurgent La Follette

Convict Miners Locked in Shaft After Mutiny

Lansing, Kan., July 9.—(P)—Sixteen officers and guards and 375 miner convicts were locked in the coal mines of the Kansas penitentiary here tonight, 730 feet below the surface, following a mutiny among the convicts. The miners mutinied today and blocked the cage in the shaft, making it impossible to send help down to the guards, Warden Mackey said tonight.

The cage was tied at the bottom of the shaft and telephone wires in the mine were cut, making communication impossible. Prison officials, however, expressed no great concern over the safety of the guards. They said they expected the mutineers would end their resistance and come out of the mine when they felt the pangs of hunger.

No calls were made for outside aid. At the warden's office it was said no efforts would be made to send additional guards below, in fact it was doubtful that those from above could reach the shaft's bottom without the use of the cage in the possession of the convicts.

No reason was advanced for the action of the prisoners. Officers said that the convicts had been unable to learn what caused the mutiny. A group of prisoners tied the cage down several years ago and refused for a time to let it be raised but there was no serious trouble.

STANTON'S LYRIC PROVES POPULAR AT LAKEWOOD PARK

Undying popularity of "Mighty Like a Rose," the famous lyric by Frank L. Stanton, poet laureate of Georgia, was reflected this week in receipt by the Southeastern Fair association of more than 500 requests from Sunday afternoon concert-goers for Miss Jessie Reese Calvert to repeat the song as one of her numbers for this Sunday's program at Lakewood park, it was disclosed Friday by Oscar Mills, secretary-manager of the park and fair.

Arrangements were made for Miss Calvert to include the song among the four she will sing. The Elks' Royal Purple band will play a special arrangement of the music for hand accompaniment, arranged by John T. Lee, composer and director of the band.

BELCHING VOLCANO ON UNIMAK ISLAND SEEN BY EXPLORERS

Washington, July 9.—The American Nature association's Alaskan expedition had an unexpected opportunity to observe nature in an ugly mood at close range according to a report sent to headquarters here.

The expedition, coming upon a belching volcano on Unimak island, attempted a landing in two boats. One containing three members of the expedition capsized and the occupants were compelled to battle for their lives in the surf with fire and smoke pouring out above them. The second boat landed safely some distance away.
